Ellis Island: First opening on January 1, 1892 as the nation's first premier federal immigration station. Visitors of all ages are welcome to explore this free attraction in New York and learn about the experiences of over 12 million immigrants once they completed their voyage across the Atlantic Ocean and head into the United States. Immigration Museum: With three different floors displaying ancient artifacts such as luggage immigrants brought from home, accounts from famous immigrants, historical photographs, antique news clippings, and political cartoons, the Ellis Island Immigration Museum captures American history unlike any other national monument. The tour is self-guided and self-paced.

Liberty Island: There are many scenic views for photos and guided tour opportunities. Liberty Island Ranger Tours are free outdoor tours which provide the opportunity to learn more about the history of Liberty Island and the Statue. Statue of Liberty National Monument: The Statue of Liberty National Monument was completed on October 28, 1886. From the base to the top of the torch, she is 151 feet high. The Statue of Liberty was originally a copper color. However, the green patina color began to spread via oxidation of the copper in the early 1900s. The patina serves to protect and smooth the statue, which is now famous for this color.

Food & Beverages: There are concession stands and gift stores on both Liberty & Ellis Island. You can take your own food to the island but large coolers will NOT be permitted past security.

Accessibility: Telephones, restrooms, picnic tables, water fountains, concession counters and public building entrances are wheelchair accessible.
